An evening with Author

Karna Small Bodman

Turning White House Experience into Political Thrillers

5:30PM-7:00PM Date: March 1, 2012

Karna served in The White House of President Ronald Reagan for 6 years,. Her last post was Senior Director of the National Security Council. She was the highest-ranking woman on The White House staff. She was also on the air for 15 years as a TV News anchor and reporter.

Now she is the bestselling author of political thrillers, Checkmate, Gambit, Final Finesse, and the short story, The Agent. Book #4 will be out soon. She will tell us stories about working in The White House and how she has woven many of them into the contemporary novels she is writing today. She'll also comment on current political trends.

Come meet Karna and her husband, Dick – new owners of a home in the Ranch.
